

VOICES OF YOUTH 2010

Rachel and Judy will join Jordan Markwood this summer to be a part of Voices of Youth for the 25th Anniversary Tour. The tour will last from June 30-July 23 and will focus on the second part of the organization's name, "Awakening the United Methodist Church to Mission". The first few days will allow the group to bond, worship and rehearse the music they will perform on the tour. After the orientation, the group will travel to Project SPY in Blacksburg, VA for a week of hands on mission work. Voices will then join many other Christian youth for a day at King's Dominion for the Kingsfest Music Festival where they will be able to meet other youth at the park (including those from Round Hill) and worship with them at the concert that night. Then begins the two weeks of touring the state, singing in worship services and performing concerts to share our experiences through music and testimony in order to help awaken our church to God's mission throughout the Conference. Voices will also participate in many local missions while on tour such as Camp Rainbow Connection, working on a Heart Havens Home, the Henry Fork Children's Center, and many more. We are excited to have two of our own participating in this ministry and recognize that they will need all of our support through donations, prayers, and your presence at their concert in Winchester.

Voices of Youth - Awakening the UMC to Mission was started in 1985 by Rev. Jim Perry as a project of the Youth Service Fund Committee of the Virginia Conference Council on Youth Ministries. It has proven to be such an effective tool for mission education, that it is now sponsored each year by the Virginia Conference General Board of Global Ministries (GBGM) - Mission Interpretation Team (MIT). To date more than 850 youth have been trained intensively in the scriptural imperative for mission and the basics of the United Methodist Church's organization for mission.

The Spring thaw always brings with it that one identifiable ingredient that jump-starts the soul - that single element that lets you know that you've made it through another winter and that longer days of possibility and restoration are before you. For some, it's the sudden appearance of the crocus and for others the sound of birds singing in the morning or the coolness of the air combined with the warmth of the sun upon a sensitive cheek. I know that it's peculiar, but the smell of sawdust in the Spring always does it for me. When I was in middle school, I participated in track and, eventually, it became a sport that I learned to love. When the season started, the ground could still be frozen from the winter freeze, but with the lengthening of days, it soon became soggy and, in places, even muddy. The concept of jumping higher or running faster and the reality of mud presented a unique challenge. Sawdust, with its natural absorbent qualities for both moisture and shock, became the track coach's saving grace. In the years since, the improvement in plastic technology, synthetic tracks, and modern pit design for high jumpers and pole vaulters has made this, once, indispensable commodity virtually obsolete for the sport. I still attend track meets, but for me, they've never been quite the same. Still, I remember my youth and the vigor associated with it every time I smell sawdust in the Springtime. In some mysterious way, by God's grace, my countenance is restored.

We, at Round Hill, have come from many different places and backgrounds. For many of us, the place where we first experienced the joy of Christian hope is no longer accessible. The building no longer exists. The teacher or parent has since passed. We simply can't go back. But, just as I have learned that sawdust exists beyond the track, so too does hope and vitality exist beyond the memory. During Lent, we've been looking inward and trying to discover where we are in our relationship with Christ. As we prepare to celebrate Easter and the reality of the resurrection, it's time to look outward and forward to renewal, reconciliation, regeneration, and new life. As the apostle Paul writes in 2 Corinthians, "So if anyone is in Christ, there is a new creation; everything old has passed away; see, everything has become new." Spring has sprung. The Lord is leading us to new and exciting places. No one is too old or broken down for God's purposes. Everyone has something to offer. Come to church. Get involved. Experience God's grace and celebrate!
