FROM THE DESK OF: JED

It finally feels like a change of season around here! As I think about so many things, I have been reminded that our seasons change as well. I am in the season of fatherhood and will undoubtedly be adjusting for the rest of my life! A year into it, I thank God for this great blessing I feel so undeserving of. It was only a short time ago that I was wrestling with God in a season of suffering and loss over our miscarriages.

My point is simple and my space is running short. Seasons change! Thank God seasons change! If you are suffering there will be joy, if you are lonely you will be comforted, and if you doubt in time you will believe. Sometimes the winter is long and the autumn cut short, but each and every day the Son shines!

In Him,

Youth Ministries Committee

We have done some great work but have some more planning to do. If you have items on a calendar that we should consider as we plan for the next year please share them with us so we can have you join us. The committee also reached consensus to opt out of a picture and wish Tea a Happy 1st B-Day!
